

ABSTRACT

A power line carrier communication system can effectively reduce leak electromagnetic field generation. Transmission data is copied on a 5 frequency axis, and vector multiplication of a finite-difference function is performed to insert either a zero signal or an inverted signal between original signals.

10